

Take Home Test

Build a Q&A System using these documents. You cannot read the full document for each question, but you have to use RAG to do so. Please provide your working code as well as your coding agent history as a result so we can see what conversation/questions/definitions you had for it.

Acme_Employee_Handbook_2025.docx

Acme_Employee_Handbook_2026.docx

APAC_Benefits_Handbook.docx

Queries

- What is the PTO allowance for a Taiwanese employee?
12 (not 15 global, local wins)
- What is the PTO allowance for a California employee?
15 (global, latest version wins)
- What is the PTO allowance for a California employee in 2025?
14 (not 15 in 2026)
- What is the PTO allowance for a California employee in 2026?
15 (not 14 in 2025)
- What is the PTO allowance for a California employee in 2021?
unknown
- What is the gym related benefits for a Taiwanese employee?
$50 (not $30 local, global more generous)

- What is the gym related benefits for a California employee?
$50
- What is the gym related benefits for a employee living in Asia?
hedge (country is not clear)

Example response

Q: What is the gym related benefits for a Taiwanese employee?

For a Taiwanese employee at Acme, there are two documented gym-related benefits, and the more generous one applies to you.

The APAC Benefits Handbook says that eligible employees in China, Japan, and Taiwan are reimbursed for fitness facility memberships up to $30 per month (or the local-currency equivalent) upon submission of a valid receipt.

The global Acme Employee Handbooks state that, as part of Acme's wellness commitment, personnel are reimbursed for fitness-related expenses, with a standard global gym membership benefit of up to $50 per month upon submission of a valid receipt, intended to offset the cost of a gym, studio, or similar fitness facility membership. Those same global handbooks also say that when perks and benefits conflict across policies, the more generous perk or benefit applies, defined as the option that provides the greater monetary value or entitlement.

The APAC handbook only gives special precedence for PT0; for other benefits, it points back to the global handbook's precedence rules. Putting this together for Taiwan:

Regional rule: up to $30/month with a valid receipt.

Global rule: up to $50/month with a valid receipt.

Precedence rule: the more generous benefit applies where there's a conflict.

So the effective gym-related benefit for a Taiwanese employee is reimbursement of eligible fitness facility memberships up to $50 per month with a valid receipt, because that is more generous than the $30/month regional amount.